

Developments in Acalyptrate Dipterology

Acalyptratae are composed of more than 65 families, representing about 20% of the species-level diversity of the Diptera. With respect to natural history, if you can imagine a lifestyle, there is probably an acalyptrate doing it!

In combination with the symposium on Tephritoidea, this symposium covers a lot of dipterological ground!

We welcome submissions on any aspects of acalyptrate dipterology!

If you are interested in contributing to this symposium, please contact:

John & Barbara Ismay – schultmay@insectsrus.co.uk
Stephen Gaimari – stephen.gaimari@cdfa.ca.gov